Let's Start!

Let's embark on a quest for the best bagel in the world!

Learning Outcome

Exchange advice and suggestions in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- Have you already had a bagel?
- Do you know where bagels originally come from?
- What kind of food is typical of your country?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food, drink, and social activities.
- I can ask questions about food, drink, and social activities.
- I can talk about people's past experiences.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa gets a crash course on bagel making by Bob the baker.

* A "crash course" is a quick, intensive lesson or training on a particular subject.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Hey Bob, that looks like a nice bagel. Where did you get it?
- Bob: I bought it at New England Bagels. It's the best bagel I've ever had in town.
- Vanessa: Yeah, they're pretty tasty, but they don't beat New York bagels. I had so many the last time I was in Manhattan. They're just so ... chewy!
- Bob: Actually, if you want my opinion as a baker, the absolute best bagels you'll ever eat are in Montreal. Nothing comes close! I've tried every single bagel shop over the years.
- Vanessa: Wow, that's dedication. Do you know what makes them so special?
- Bob: They dip the bagels in honey. Then, they boil them for about two minutes before baking them. That's what gives them their unique texture and flavor.
- Vanessa: So Montreal has great jazz and great bakeries. I can't believe I've never been there yet!
- Bob: Oh, you would love it. They have amazing French bistros, excellent breweries and the nightlife beats Boston's hands down. In my opinion, it's the most fun city I've visited so far.
- Vanessa: Sounds like the perfect weekend getaway with Marco ... Can you tell me where I can find these bagels then?

Let's Practice!

Bob the baker loves to talk about food and drink.

Questions with Sentences / Asking for Clarification

You ask for clarification when you want more details of what the other person is talking about.

We often ask for clarification when we are not clear on what the other person is referring to. We ask the other person to be more specific by giving more information.

You can use questions with sentences to ask for clarification. You ask a question including a sentence within the question, like Don't you think it sounds a bit too intense? Questions with sentences are called embedded questions.

You can use embedded questions like Can you tell me ... ? or Do you know if/which/what ... ? to ask for clarification.

An embedded question builds on a simple question.

Example:

Simple question: Where did you get that bagel?

Embedded question: Can you tell me where you got that bagel?

Main Question	Embedded Question
Do you know ...	what/where/when/who ... ?
Do you remember ...	what/where/when/who ... ?
Can you tell me ...	what/where/when/who ... ?
Could you tell me ...	what/where/when/who ... ?

Examples:

- Do you know what makes Montreal bagels so special?
- Can you tell me where I can find these bagels then?

Learning Points

Present Perfect vs. The Simple Past Tense

1. We use the Present Perfect tense for actions which started in the past and are still happening now OR for finished actions which have a connection to the present.
2. We use the Simple Past tense for past events or actions which have no connection to the present.

Rule	Example	Explanation
The Present Perfect is used when the time period has NOT finished.	It's the best bagel I've ever had in town. Have you tried these bagels?	The time period goes up to the present.
The Simple Past is used when the time period HAS finished.	I had so many bagels the last time I was in New York! I didn't eat any bagels when I was in New York.	The trip to New York has finished.
